Good conversations bring people together. Great ones inspire action.

On Nov. 18, stop by Versiti on King to learn more about blood health, explore community health resources and connect with the Versiti team. Whether you choose to donate blood or simply listen and learn, there's a place for you here.

Find Versiti's community tables inside Neighborhood Hall

Blood donation | 8 a.m. – 5 p.m. Interested in giving blood? Visit the on-site Versiti donor center to learn how you can help patients. All donors will receive a $25 Pete's Fruit Market gift card while supplies last.

Blood typing | 9 a.m. – 12 p.m. Learn your blood type with our laboratory team.

Blood health education | 7 a.m. – 12 p.m. Explore educational resources and ask questions.

Community health connections | 7 a.m. – 12 p.m. Meet our Community Health Navigator, James Griffin, and our Community Health Liaison, Barbara Bell, and learn about available services and resources.

James Griffin is a Community Health Navigator who continues to provide education and awareness on sickle cell, sickle cell trait and the importance of having diverse blood donors. James will be signing his book, Breaking Silence: Living With Sickle Cell Anemia, while supplies last, to those who donate.

As a Community Health Liaison, Barbara Bell connects community members to healthcare, social services and resources that support healthier lives. Whether you need medical care, basic needs assistance or sickle cell support, she's here to help.
